Will became a single mother completely by choice.

It started when he'd gotten stabbed and decided he was definitely in need of a career change and possible retirement from full time work. He'd inherited his own home by that pointing life and had enough in funds to never have to work again. Not with the simple life he lives anyways. However, even he didn't like the idea of spending every day alone in his home until he eventually died. So, he decided to teach, profiling to the FBI. Good work, good money, and something he could do at his own pace and time. It was a vast improvement from being an active officer on the streets. He was much more comfortable behind his desk.

Afterwards he eventually found that while his new job recently increased his satisfaction he was still longing for something. After getting over the idea that an omega like him was too unusual in wanting a normal family life he realized that he did in fact want children. He still didn't' feel the need to seek out and find his soulmate but oh boy was he sick with baby fever.

He eventually decided that it wasn't necessary to have a alpha just to have a baby. He started looking into sperm donation, and quickly realized it was out of his price range. It wasn't all that much but too much to be worth it when he could just take a risk on some condomless sex in order to get what he wanted. The benefit of being a omega was that when you were pre-heat it took very little to get an alpha interested. He didn't even need to share small talk most of the time. So long as he got himself dressed up and walked into the club with those pheromones going it was enough.

He'd just walk up and kiss the first weak alpha he saw. His safety chocker in place and a STD/STI kit in his bg. Once he got them to the hotel and the alpha thoroughly worked up he'd nick them with a needle and sneak off to the bathroom with words of getting ready. He'd wait for the test to be done while he dolled himself up. if it was clean he'd just go for it. If it wasn't, he's sneak out the window. He got so good and well known after a while that at some point body guards stopped even making him wait in line knowing he'd be gone in minutes. He'd even got stopped by officers suspecting prostitutions. A honest explanation was enough to get them off his back for good, but not without dealing with their pitying looks at his unorthodox attempt at getting a baby.

Still it was all worth it eventually. All the uncomfortable clothes, bad sex, and humiliating accusations, because in a mere three months Will's home pregnancy test came back positive and he couldn't be happier.
